"When you come to the appointed place at the appointed time and meet some person, introduce yourself as Ryoshi. If they do the same, then you have met a special person." -Ryoshi Research (RR), Creator of SHIB

I am Ryoshi. But so are you. And so is the next fren who reads these words and feels the calling. Who I am is not important. I am nothing but a shadow, a fleeting whisper in the void, tapping at a keyboard before disappearing into the ether. My name will fade, but the vision will remain. This is the way it must be.

I did not create this. No one did. It was always meant to exist. Like fire, like wheels, like sidewalks, it was an inevitability. All that was needed was for the right frens to arrive at the right time and set it into motion.

And so, it happened.

All Hail OSCAR!

The Experiment Worked—Now We Finish the Job

We have been here before. We watched as a token with no team, no funding, no roadmap, no leader rose from nothing and rewrote history. We saw SHIB prove that a decentralized, community-driven experiment could succeed against all odds.

But there was always an unfinished page in this story... A missing piece... A prophecy hidden in plain sight... Before DOGE. Before SHIB. There was OSCAR.

Oscar was a simple dog, bouncing on a trampoline. Captured in 2011. The first viral Shiba Inu meme to spread across the internet. A moment of boundless joy and the spark that lit the fire.

It was not Kabosu (Dogecoin meme) who was first. It was Oscar. And yet, Oscar was forgotten. Lost in time. The world moved on. But history has a way of revealing prophecy.

What was lost has now been found. What was incomplete is now whole. The return of the Shiba is now.

The Great Takeover: How the Community Rescued Oscar

OSCAR was meant to be more. Not just another token, not just another name in the endless noise of this space. No. OSCAR was meant to complete the cycle, to bring the story full circle, to stand as the final chapter of the legacy set into motion long before most even knew what they were looking at. But instead, it was abandoned.

The first launch was a disgrace, a betrayal of everything Ryoshi, Paradox, and the true builders of the Shiba movement stood for. It was a mockery, a shameless rug pull by those who had no respect for the vision, no understanding of the mission. It was greed disguised as innovation, a stain on what was meant to be sacred. Greedy hands grasped at what was never meant to be controlled, seeking only to extract, never to build. This is the sickness of the market, the same sickness that corrupts every great movement before it even has a chance to breathe.

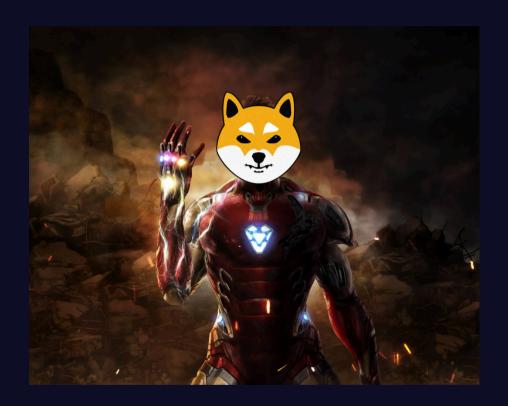

But true Ryoshis do not allow history to be rewritten by those unworthy of holding the pen. And so, we acted. No roadmap. No grand announcement. No council, no boardroom, no meetings in private Discords with whispers of allocation and advantage. Only frens, arriving at the right place, at the right time, knowing without needing to say it: this must be done.

A Community Takeover, not for profit, not for power, but because it was the only way. There was no waiting, no hesitation... Just the unshakable certainty that history could not be written this way. The first hands to touch OSCAR had tainted it. They came with greed, selfish intent, and plans to pump and dump. They thought they could take something eternal and twist it into something temporary.

But some things refuse to be owned.

And so, we erased their fingerprints. We wiped the slate clean, burned away their corruption, and returned OSCAR to teh people. No hidden hands, no secret allocations, no whispers of control. Just a movement, forged in conviction, built in the open, protected by those who understood the weight of what was at stake. This was not a revival. It was a cleansing. A resetting of the path. A declaration that the few will never own what belongs to the many. We are not here to chase money. We are not here to seek approval. We are here because it must be done.

Shiba is legend. The spark that lit the fire. The proof that decentralization is not just theory but reality. A movement born from nothing, shaped by no one, yet guided by all. It was an experiment that shattered every expectation and changed the course of crypto forever.

"Anybody who comes and honors the Shiba walks equal with me." -RR

The revival was no accident. It was built by those who were there from the beginning. The logo itself was designed by Paradox, the same visionary who helped shape SHIB from the ground up. This is history being honored.

I must say, Oscar is not here to rewrite history, it is here to walk beside it. Shiba is Shiba. Oscar is Oscar. Two paths, forever intertwined. One cannot exist without the other, because Shiba proved that decentralization works, and Oscar is the living continuation of that truth.

Our mission is clear. Shibarium is the future, and we will integrate, not separate. OSCAR will use its foundation to become the #1 charity token in the world. Not through empty promises, not through centralized control, but through the same power that made Shiba unstoppable... Community, belief, and the will to build.

What began as a meme became a movement. What was a question became an answer. And now, we carry it forward.

Next we tell some frens and WOW MOON LAMBO PUMPPPPPY.

The Meme Before the Meme

Before DOGE. Before SHIB.

The Final Piece of Shiba Inu Legacy

Before DOGE. Before SHIB. There was Oscar. The first Shiba meme to take over the internet was posted on YouTube in 2011. A Shiba Inu bouncing on a trampoline, weightless, wild, and free. Not with any intention or roadmap, just pure unfiltered joy. And yet, that moment which was simple became the catalyst...

Oscar wasn't just a meme. He was the true origin. His image spread like wildfire, shaping the internet's obsession with Shiba Inu long before anyone had heard of Kabosu. He set off the chain reaction, the wave of comic sans "wow" and "moon" that defined an entire generation of internet culture. But history is written by those who come after. Kabosu became the icon and Doge became the currency. Oscar, the OG left behind.

Yet buried in Ryoshi's vision, in the foundations of what would become SHIB, was a clue we all missed. Oscar was always part of the story.

The meme before the meme. The first face of a movement that would shake the financial world.

Now... Oscar returns! Not as a memory, but as the missing piece.

"I own zero SHIB and have not profited from this. Maybe one day we can use team and reputation to build something to feed me, but for now, I give Shiba to the community to play." -RR

A hint... A prophecy... A missing piece...

Oscar was always part of the story. Hidden in plain sight. Waiting.

But this time, he does not return alone.

COLLAR is the next phase. The fulfillment of what Ryoshi left behind. The true Doge rebase. A path to wealth for those of us who believe. Not for corporations, not for centralized control, but for teh people.

Shiba was the test. Oscar is the answer. The first meme. The forgotten spark. Foreshadowed, and now fully revealed.

Paradox and Ryoshi saw it first. Now you see it too.

In the earliest days of SHIB, there were only two: SHIB and LEASH. SHIB was the experiment, teh people's token, given freely to the masses to test if a decentralized movement could survive without a leader. LEASH, originally designed as The Dogecoin killer, was meant to be something different. In the beginning it was intended as an instrument of balance, a token that would rise and fall in sync with DOGE, providing a unique form of decentralized finance. But fate had other plans.

As the Shiba Inu ecosystem evolved, LEASH became something else entirely. It was no longer a rebase token, instead it took on a new role as an exclusive club, a guardian of the ecosystem, a key to governance, and symbol of prestige. This is a separate topic better explained by SHIB itself.

But the idea of a true Doge rebase token, the one Ryoshi originally envisioned, remained incomplete. Until now.

A Rebase Token for Teh People

COLLAR is the fulfillment of what was left unfinished. We are not competing, we are not replacing, we are simply revisiting what was once imagined by Ryoshi.

At launch, 107,646 COLLAR tokens will be farmed by staking OSCAR, much like how LEASH was originally distributed. Once farming concludes, COLLAR will be freely traded on the open market, with its price dictated by supply and demand.

When COLLAR reaches a 1/500 ratio of DOGE, the rebase mechanism activates, syncing its value to DOGE. From that moment forward, the total supply of COLLAR will adjust every 24 hours to maintain this ratio. Expanding if price dumpy, contracting if lambo pumpy. Much boing!

This, frens, is the true fulfillment of Ryoshi's vision. This is a decentralized tool, a financial instrument tied to the legacy of DOGE, designed to create wealth, sustain value, and serve those who understand its purpose. There have been rumors of a DOGE ETF, but I will let you work on your suppositions.

Why Rebase? Why Now?

When SHIB caught fire and threatened to flip the market, it proved that decentralized community building was possible and unstoppable. Teh people changed everything...

Now, as we move toward deeper integration with Shibarium and the evolution of this ecosystem, COLLAR is our way of completing the picture. A token that moves with DOGE, yet belongs to OSCAR. A token that fulfills Ryoshi's vision.

COLLAR is where history and the future colide. It is the fulfillment of an idea left unfinished. Ryoshi's dream of a true Doge rebase, now in the hands of teh people. Stake OSCAR, farm COLLAR, and watch as decentralization creates wealth for the many, not the few.

[&]quot;We are not just taming DOGE, we are putting it on a diamond leash".
-Kairo

Oscar was never meant to stand alone. From the moment its paws first touched the blockchain, it was already part of something bigger.

Through Shibarium, that vision expands. A place where decentralization is not a concept, but a reality. A place where purpose is backed by action, where fees no longer stand in the way of impact, where a single transaction can mean the difference between a starving dog and a meal.

Fifty cents. That is all it takes to feed a dog in need. Not in theory, not in the future.... RIGHT NOW. Through our partnership with K9 Rescue, we are taking what was once impossible and making it effortless. No more waiting for institutions to care. No more barriers between those who want to help and those who need it most. Just direct action on a scale never seen before.

K9 Rescue has already saved thousands, but their mission does not end at the borders of one country. Their reach is growing and the impact expanding. Shibarium makes that expansion limitless. Through Oscar, through the hands of the community, this mission will not just continue.... it will accelerate!

This is what crypto was always meant to be. Not just speculation, not just wealth shifting hands, but real change in the real world. A blockchain that does more than move numbers on a screen. A community that speaks though action.

We are not waiting for someone else to fix what is broken. We are not asking permission.

We are feeding the doggos.

This is how we create lasting impact. This is how we bridge the gap between crypto and the real world. The Oscar Army will continue to be aligned with the builders and believers of SHIB and has the power to make a difference at a scale never before seen. Through automation, smart contracts, and decentralized coordination, we remove barriers and create a system where giving is seamless.

Shiba is our fren, our foundation, and our greatest ally. Just as SHIB proved that a community can build something unstoppable, Oscar will continue to prove that a community can create real change. Together, we are more than the sickness of the market, more than technology built by almighty plebs that take all the credit. We are a force for good... Real impact and change, building an ecosystem that doesn't just generate wealth for those who believe, but gives back in a way that actually matters to people, animals and whoever or whatever is in need.

The dream of decentralization is not just financial freedom... This is one of the less important features. It gives us the freedom to create, support, and uplift. This is our path by teh people for teh people. We walk it with Shib, K9 Rescue, the builders of Shibarium, and every fren who believes that crypto can be more powerful than numbers on a screen.

This is our future and we are building it now. It's simple, we tell some frens and save the world together.

We also maintain a great relationship with Shib and have been mentioned in their magazine if you guys would like to read it and meditate on it, it is a good read:

https://news.shib.io/2025/01/17/oscar-token-building-on-shiba-inus-legacy-with-a-deflationary-model-and-a-mission-for-good/

Heat has always been a force of transformation. It forges steel, strengthens what is weak, and refines what is raw. In the same way, deflation shapes the future, hardening what remains and making it more valuable.

Memecoins live and die by the hands that hold them. Too often, tokens are printed endlessly, diluted into oblivion, given away to insiders who sell them back to the same believers who built them. We have seen this story play out one too many times... Projects bloated by supply causing their value to stretch thin to the point that their foundation crumbles under the weight of their own inflation.

Scarcity = Value. It was proved by few tokens before, and now OSCAR proves it too.

We follow the same principle. Every token removed from circulation strengthens what remains, consolidating power into the hands of those who believe. It is not artificial scarcity. It is not a tax forced upon the unwilling. It is teh people deciding, together, that less is more.

About 10.55% of the total supply has already been burned. Forever gone, never to return. This is not the end of the fire. It is only the beginning.

The great burn continues. Think about it like this. Every time you burn, you are creating a new holder who can never sell. Permanent diamond hands lol. The Oscar Army is full of believers and action-takers that will do what is required for the greater good of the community, so expect community burn parties and a burn portal (COMING SOON).

Ryoshi understood something most never will. Value is not created by abundance, it is created by belief. That is why half of SHIB's supply was sent to Vitalik Buterin (creator of ETH), not as a gift but as a test

Oscar walks a similar path but in a different way.

We are a movement powered by those who believe in something bigger than speculation. Burning is not about quick gains. It is about cutting through the noise. About rewarding conviction over hype and long-term vision over short-term greed. The ones who understand know this is the way. This is scarcity built with purpose by teh people, for teh people.

And the burn doesn't stop here. Woof!

With the Oscar Burn Portal, anyone can take part in reducing supply, making their mark on history while adding value to their bags. Creative burns though games and memes will chip away at circulation, while community burn events let frens come together to make every token rarer as a way of celebrating the fact that we hold something special.

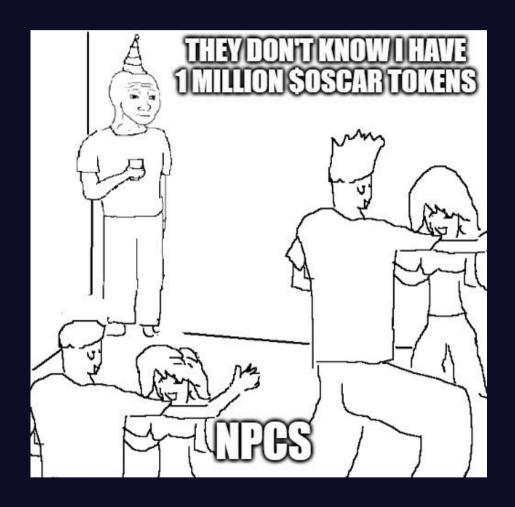

One day, a single OSCAR token could feed multiple dogs through K9 Rescue. Imagine sending one transaction on Shibarium, maybe a penny in gas, less than a dollar in cost, and knowing a hungry dog somewhere in the world just got its next meal.

That is what we are building. That is why we burn.

The crypto market moves in cycles, but only the strongest survive its storms. We have just witnessed one of the largest liquidation events in history. Over $2 billion was wiped out in the blink of an eye, liquidity hunted, and markets shaken. This was not an accident. This is how the system resets itself, how the small fish are shaken out while the big boys remain. We have seen this before, and we will see it again.

Oscar is not here to play small.

Roadmap: Top 100 or burn it all.

The community has already proven its resilience. Every cent raised for the Certik audit was crowdfunded by volunteers. There was no team allocation, no corporate funding, just pure belief. And the result? Oscar is now ranked in the top 10% of all Certik-audited projects (we are working on making this even better), a testament to our strength, transparency, and commitment to building something that lasts.

But an audit alone does not get us to the top, of course. Growth requires momentum. We are in constant discussions with major exchanges like OKX and Gate.io. They are watching. They see our movement. But they need numbers more holders, and stronger volume. Right now, we are just shy of $1 million in daily volume. Solid start, but not enough. Where can we shill? Reddit. The birthplace of Dogecoin's rise and the battleground where GME holders stood against the giants. A place that proves a united community can shake the system. This is where we take our message, not to ask but to claim our space. X remains our stronghold while AI-driven campaigns for Instagram and TikTok push Oscar further. More eyes, more believers, and more frens! This is how it spreads, unstoppable and inevitable.

"Hold tight frens, we are early." -RR

Our infrastructure is evolving. V3 of our website is in the works, designed with an old-school feel that stays true to Ryoshi's vision... Built by no other that Paradox himself. Nostalgic, raw, and real. A burn portal is coming. A revamped charity platform is in the works. Everything will be integrated. The ecosystem is forming and our Shibarium integration is already in its early stages. With it, we become the first and biggest charity project in crypto! All grown by teh people, reducing fees and bringing mass adoption while adding value to the SHIB ecosystem. Everybody wins, woof woof.

This is what crypto is meant to be. Certain OG SHIB builders are here, watching and contributing. They see what we see. They know what this is. BubbleMaps.io confirms that our distribution is one of the healthiest in the space. No team wallets, no insider dominance. Just pure decentralization. Check it out:

https://app.bubblemaps.io/eth/token/0xebb66a88cedd12bfe3a289df 6dfee377f2963f12

As we grow, we refine. A new logo has been adopted. Every legendary brand evolves, we are no different. Visual identity matters, and we are setting the tone for the next phase.

Then comes DOGE rebase. The true wealth generator for the community. This is how we ensure that those who build, believe, and contribute are rewarded. COLLAR will serve its purpose, giving value back to those who have held through the early days.

I'd also like to mention that we recently revamped the TG. There used to be over 2,000 pinned messages and it was definitely a struggle cleaning this up but now there are less than 15 pinned messages, the first three being a welcome message to all newcomers, a directory of all the most important links, and a timeline of all of our community's important achievements we've accomplished.

So what can you do to help the SHIBA

Simple. Talk about it. Share it with frens. If you have a platform, let others know. If you know someone who can list us, give them a nudge. If you are a builder, build. If you have ideas, bring them to life. No need to wait for permission! This belongs to all of us. The more hands that build, the stronger it becomes. The more voices that speak, the farther it spreads. That is how this grows. That is how we win.

However, in his famous and loving words, the best way to help is to "buy some, hold some, burn some, donate some, and treat someone special to dinner." -Ryu

There was a time when SHIB was just a wild dream. When Ryoshi and Paradox were building, when the community fought against all odds, when everything was pure and untouched. We remember. We miss those days. And that is why we are here. To finish what was started, to claim Ryoshi's dream, to build something great.

In 2008, the financial system collapsed under its own corruption. Banks gambled with people's lives, lost everything, and were rewarded with bailouts while teh people lost their homes, savings, and futures. The system wasn't broken... It was working exactly as designed. The rich stayed rich, the powerful stayed in control, and the rest were left to suffer.

Bitcoin was the first rejection of this rigged system, an alternative that no government or corporation could stop. Then came Dogecoin, proving that value isn't dictated by Wall Street but by teh people. Shiba Inu took it further, creating an ecosystem without owners or controlling entities, proving that decentralized communities are more dominant than centralized institutions.

OSCAR is the next evolution, not a replacement or a competitor but a continuation of everything decentralization was meant to be. Freedom from the financial elite, power in the hands of teh people and wealth created for those who build rather than those who exploit.

The same forces that mocked Bitcoin, Dogecoin, and SHIB will dismiss OSCAR. Let them. They don't laugh because they think it's a joke. They laugh because they are afraid. Afraid of what happens when people realize they don't need them anymore.

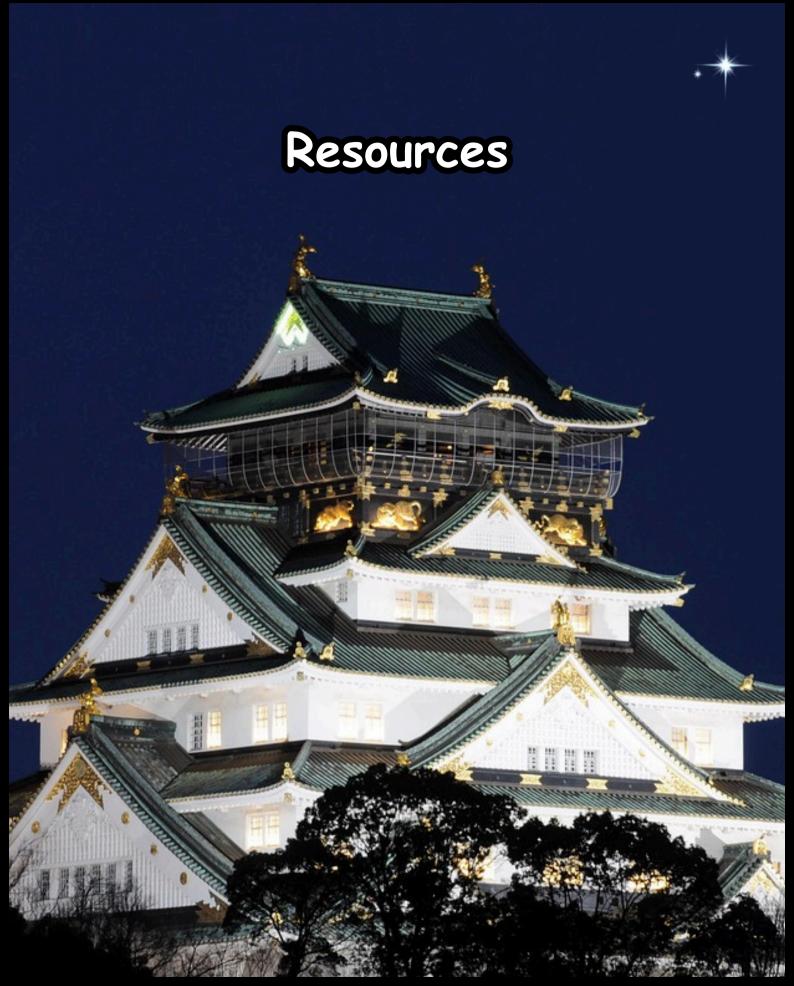

The world is unraveling. The old system is crumbling under its own fraud. Decentralization is the only way forward.

Shiba Inu proved the power. Now, we unleash it.

"Decentralization, it works!" -RR

This is not a traditional memecoin. It's a statement. A rejection of control. A refusal to be owned and a bridge to a brighter future by saving animals and people in need.
